Yes, a number of the trees and shrubs brought by the West Capitol Ave./Jefferson Blvd. intersection by the West Sacramento Downtown Association are dead or dying.

"They became rootbound," said Mike Gorman, president of the association. "The recent wave of heat really hurt them." He added that the trees will shortly be moved to an in-ground location further north on Jefferson Blvd., and that it was in the plans that the trees would only be a temporary feature at their current display area near the "La Bou" restaurant and other businesses.

As a project of the city's downtown association, the project was funded by assessments on downtown businesses in an effort to beautify the city's commercial center. The landowner near Michigan and Jefferson where the surviving trees will make their new home will be more attentive to the vegetation's needs, he said.

The corner where the trees now stand is slated for a possible new Walgreen's pharmacy store.

■ Undisclosed number of Golden State Middle School students face hearings which could lead to expulsion after allegations of marijuana involvement

By Steve Marschke

A number of students at West Sacramento's Golden State Middle School have become targets of an investigation after an investigation blossomed from a marijuana use incident this month. The students have been suspended from class until they are heard by a panel of district administrators -- which could take action ranging from returning them to class to recommending that the students be expelled.

The West Sacramento Police Department has separately cited at least some of the students involved.

David Kopperud, the Washington Unified School District's administrator for child welfare, said Tuesday that he did not know the exact number of children incriminated in the investigation, but that "at least five" currently face discipline. G.S.M.S. principal Diane Tope-Smith declined to comment on either this number or provide other details.

Because of the children's status as minors, the News-Ledger did not request their names.

Kopperud stated that "right now, the incidents are still under investigation. They haven't gone to administrative hearing yet."

He added that the investigation started small, but mushroomed as students were interviewed.

"A number of different kids were involved with marijuana," he said. "If so-and-so brought it to school, you talk to that kid and he says, 'I brought it to school, but I bought it from so-and-so.' You have to investigate to determine what really happened and make sure the kids aren't implicating other kids just to get out of trouble."

The first step for the accused students is to go before a panel of three district administrators who don't work at the school. The panel could return the kids to school immediately or recommend suspensions or expulsion. If this kind of discipline is recommended, the students and parents would be invited to a hearing in front of the school board. If the parents don't agree with the final decision of the board, they could appeal to the Yolo County Office of Education.

Any students expelled would then attend Westside School, operated by the county at a storefront on Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento.

Kopperud said that the middle school is where at-risk children first find themselves subject to peer pressures for

Murder of Rio Linda high school student forces scrutiny of schools' hiring practices

■ No such thing as perfect school safety, but district will tighten its hiring procedures, says W.U.S.D. chief

By Steve Marschke

School districts all over the country are reacting to the news that a Rio Linda high school student was murdered last week -- and the chief suspect is a newly-hired janitor with a criminal record. Parents and administrators alike want to know what they can do to prevent other districts from allowing newly-hired employees to start work on campus before fingerprint checks and other background checks verify that they do not have a dangerous history.

The Rio Linda student was murdered after what was for her a routine request to use a phone in an empty wood shop class room to call home after school. She was found with a head injury and slashed throat. District officials at the Grant High School District are attempting to explain to angry students and parents how it was that the district did not find out about the suspect's criminal history (which included a manslaughter conviction -- before allowing him to work at school.

Part of the problem, explained Dr. Dennis Kelleher, acting superintendent at Washington Unified School District in West Sacramento, is that the district "can't wait the 30 to 60 days necessary (for the department of justice to complete a fingerprint check) to hire people, because that's a health and safety issue for the students in itself."

"There will always be some level of risk no matter what process the district follows," he stated in a district memo yesterday, "(but) in order to minimize the potential of employing an individual with a past criminal history, beginning immediately the district will require all applicants to pay an additional $10 fee to the Department of Justice which they require for expediting the background search so that a preliminary report will be provided to the District within seven days. No employee will be required to work until the D.O.J. expedited, preliminary report is received."

Kelleher added that the preliminary report is based on the applicant's stated name, so that if the applicant provides a false name and false identification documents, he or she can get by the preliminary report without being found out. But the fingerprint check which follows would catch the lie further down the road if the applicant has a criminal record.

And all employees are asked if they have ever been convicted of anything more serious than a traffic ticket, he said. If the background check reveals they didn't tell the truth, they are fired.

Such a thing recently happened with a secretary who neglected to answer on her application that she had been convicted of burglary. When the background check revealed the conviction after she began work, the woman claimed she had forgotten about the conviction, but the woman was determined to be a risk to the district and was fired, said Kelleher.

Kelleher said that it is not W.U.S.D. policy to allow a student to go unaccompanied into a vacant school room to make a call or for other reasons, such as retrieving a book.

"We send (students) to the office, where there are people, to make a call," said Kelleher. "Or if kids come back and say, 'I left my book in my English class,' they check at the office and someone with keys escorts them to the room."

Raider tennis goes 24-0 in 1997

From River City High School

The River City High School Tennis Team completed its regular season last Thursday with an 8 to 1 win at Lindhurst to finish 1997 with an unblemished 24 and 0 record, including a 10 and 0 mark in the Golden Empire League. Lindhurst's loss left the Blazers tied with Colfax for second place behind R.C. the Blazers and the Falcons both finished with 7 wins and 3 losses and played a match on Friday to determine which would represent the G.E.L. as its number two team in the Sac-Joaquin Section Team Playoffs. The Falcons prevailed 6 to 3.

In R.C.'s match against the Blazers, girls singles players Meuy Saechao (#1) and Douangchanh Lattasima (#2) again led the way winning easily 6-1, 6-0 and 6-1, 6-2, respectively. #1 boys singles player Ahmad lost a grueling three-setter 3-6, 6-2, 1-6 to Kou Kong while Jeff Wright avenged his only G.E.L. loss of the year of downing rival J.J. Cara 6-2, 7-6.

In doubles, all of the Raider number one pairs finished league play with undefeated records. The teams are: Sarom Phoung and Phoungeun Souvannaphoungeun at #1 boys, Khonthavy Phouanglasy and Peter Santizo in mixed, and Bethany Monroe and Aenoy Xayasone at #1 girls.

This week the Raiders will be playing in the G.E.L. Tournament hoping to qualify, individually in singles or as a doubles team, for the Sac-Joaquin Section Division III Tournament. The Section Tournament, held this week in Stockton, features the top singles players and doubles teams from six leagues throughout Northern California. The Section team playoffs also get underway this week, but the Raiders have received a first round bye due to their first place finish in the G.E.L.

They will host a quarterfinal match next Tuesday afternoon, May 27 against the winner of tomorrow's first round match between the champions of the Southern League and the second place team from the Mother Lode League.

News-Ledger Editorial

Once again, a tragedy spurs a look at prevention

On Friday after school, a popular female student at a Rio Linda high school asked to be let in to an empty wood shop class to use the phone and call home for a ride. It was the habit of several students at the school to do just that on a daily basis.

But this time, tragedy followed the girl into the wood shop class. She was found the victim of a bloody murder, throat slashed and head smashed. The Sacramento Sheriff's Department believes she was killed by the newly-hired janitor who says he just found her body.

Physical evidence doesn't match the man's claim that he was innocent, they feel. And the janitor is an ex-felon who was convicted once of manslaughter.

Although the man has not yet been convicted (except in the court of public opinion), a great deal of attention has been focused on how the Grant School District could have allowed the janitor to begin work at the school before background checks filled them in on his past. District officials had, in what is apparently near-universal policy, allowed him to begin work before the fingerprint check being conducted by the state Department of Justice was complete.

The case has made news not only locally, but statewide and even nationally.

Employers -- particularly school districts -- are answering questions about their hiring process, and how they can lower the risk of the same crime happening on their own turf. Because the reality is, that at Washington Unified School District as well as in most other districts in California, the same thing probably could have happened.

Locally, West Sacramento school officials are tightening up their hiring procedures as much as they think is practically possible. But the key is what is "practical," because officials don't think it is truly possible to delay the hiring of a needed person until an entire background check is complete. By leaving staffing vacant too long, that in itself might create a "health and safety hazard" for local students, said the district's acting superintendent.

The public should keep a close eye not only on the measures now being taken at Washington Unified to minimize the chance of bringing a dangerous new employee onto campus, but should also look as what can be better done so that the state Department of Justice and the FBI can more quickly assist schools in screening out dangerous people sooner.

Also worth a look -- and not so heavily examined in the media -- is the question of why individual students at the Rio Linda school were being allowed into an unsupervised area to make their phone calls. Under the impression they were doing the kids a favor by letting them use a phone in a vacant shop class, school staff actually set up a murder.

Instead, the kids should have been made to use a phone in the office or other public area.

Of course, a predator can easily enter a campus regardless of whether he was hired to be there by the district.

The local superintendent said that what happened in Rio Linda, where students were being let into an empty room to use the phone, is counter to policy at Washington Unified.

No doubt it is. But are we all that sure this policy is being followed, or has the generosity of human nature led to a practice of granting exceptions for student convenience?

At least one local resident has asked this question, and it deserves a close scrutiny by district staff, followed by any corrective action necessary. Students deserve the maximum amount of safety in school, even when it means they have to walk a little further and wait in line for a phone, or if they have to find a teacher or designated staff member to accompany them to an empty room to retrieve a forgotten book.

Guest commentary:

Serious damage from this disease can be easily prevented

Once again, California finds itself at the top of a list, and once again it is not the list we'd like to lead. The Golden State now registers the greatest number of cases of chlamydia in the nation among young women. Chlamydia is a sexually transmitted infection which often shows no symptoms, and therefore may be thought of as "silent." However, if left untreated, it can cause infertility or severe complications during pregnancy, including birth defects and miscarriage.

This is tragic because chlamydia can be detected and treated easily. A simple, confidential test can detect the infection and single dose of antibiotic will treat it. Examinations, results and treatment can be entirely confidential.

Chlamydia is the leading cause of preventable infertility in women. Teenagers and young adults under 25 years of age have the highest rates of infection and complications. Among adolescents 15-19 years old, we estimate that one in ten statewide is infected. The infection knows no ethnic, economic or social barriers.

Chlamydia is spread by infected partners during sexual contact, and it can be acquired again and again after treatment. There is not immunity to it and no vaccine. Most men and women who are infected have no detectable symptoms. It is easy to let the disease progress to the point at which it can cause severe complications, including Pelvic Inflammatory Disease. That, in turn, can cause a potentially fatal tubal pregnancy, infertility and chronic pelvic pain. Infants can be born infected with the disease, and if untreated, they may suffer conjunctivitis and pneumonia.

Most people are aware of other sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS, gonorrhea and syphilis, yet chlamydia, which can be easily detected and treated, is a more widespread public health problem. We estimate nearly 300,000 women in California are infected with chlamydia, yet a majority of them know nothing or very little about the disease. We encourage all young and sexually active adventuresome persons here in Yolo County and elsewhere to have a simple and confidential test, or, if they have questions, to contact the statewide chlamydia hotline at 1-800-495-6743. One quick call and one simple test could have a significant bearing on their future.

Hooray for bus service

Airport bus service for Woodland, Sac Int'l Airport, Sacramento (downtown), West Sac and Davis - in both directions hourly for roughly 18 runs weekdays and lesser hours for non-weekdays - should kick in sometime late June. Not only will this just about double current service to/from Woodland, but we will see the first regular Sunday bus service for Woodland also. For too long special events in our county seat have been denied non-drivers. Stepped-up regular bus service as we see forthcoming should be of great assistance to many of those making change as per the Welfare Reform Act, from those directly affected to agency employees assisting those individuals into the job market.

Logically, the timing of local routes will probably need adjusting to minimize waiting time for the new #42 YoloBus Airport Bus Service. With only an hour to run the loop, some streamlining will be necessary, allowing the #42 to NOT stop at all present YoloBus stops and encouraging riders to utilize local buses for short runs. I understand Davis' Unitrans will finally agree to reciprocally honor transfers, daily and monthly passes from YoloBus and Regional Transit; thus, riders from the three districts need not pay but one fare as long travel is within scheduled time limits.

This would appear to be the right time to improve the #39 Southport YoloBus route which now has just the service for the "8 to 5" workers and the four midday runs, with the last service from downtown Sacramento around 5 p.m. (Nobody will give up their car for such limited service.) Southporters should have "every other hour service" and later service, too. Likewise for our Industrial Park - service that would allow West

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 6 inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This is the lowest stage of the river for this time of the year in twenty years. A year ago at this time the river gauge showed on the same date 11 feet 10 inches, as was then recorded on the gauge on the Southern Pacific bridge. N. R. Taylor, meteorologist, declared that the river during the month of April averaged 4 feet 5 inches, which is 15 feet 1 inch below the normal stage.

A new home is being built by Marcel Tash on his ranch near Riverview, on the highway lately built through West Sacramento. The home will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000 and is one of the first to be built in that locality. The contractor is M. F. Terra of Sacramento.

Saturday noon will be the last day on which the canneries of Sacramento will receive consignments of spinach. The crop is about harvested and any that is yet left on the land will be permitted to go to seed. However, nearly all the growers have finished harvesting and had a fairly good crop with a standard price under contract with the California Packing Corporation.

A license was issued last Tuesday to Edward LeRoy Mackey and Pearl Alberta O'Haver, both of West Sacramento. The license was issued in Sacramento and the young people have already gone on a short honeymoon.

Frank Janik was receiving his principal consignments of goods yesterday with which to stock his store at West Sacramento headquarters. Besides the automobile service station he has established there, he will also carry a stock of cigars, soft drinks, ice and a small selection of groceries. The service station is now nearly completed and is a model for convenience and quick service. Janik will also add to his stock as he goes along and expects to make his place a stopping place for all West Sacramento farmers and travelers from the Holland district.

The Washington Star Club initiated three new members last Wednesday night in its weekly meeting at the Westminster Church in Sacramento. The Canteen Auto Camp has disposed of nearly all its tents and those not yet sold will be disposed of as soon as possible. It is the intention of McNally & Partridge, the owners, to build a permanent structure to house tourists. They report that during the past week increased travel on the state highway has added considerably to their business, and that as the quarantine is being lifted on account of the foot and mouth disease the increase in traffic is becoming more noticeable.

Leo Lee has been added to the force of the Fraser & Doyle service station to look after the root beer stand that was lately opened by the owners. Lee reports that business is good, but nevertheless he is about to quit to go into business for himself in Sacramento. To replace him, it is the intention of Fraser & Doyle to place a fascinating young lady in charge of the stand.

H. Barton, a vagrant picked up by Constable Buckingham last Monday, was sent to the county jail for sixty days by Judge Barry. He had been loafing around the jungles south of the M street bridge and evidently was cooking canned heat for his own use and the use of several others who have become victims of the Volstead law.

Annie Brusch was returned to Woodland last Friday by Judge Barry to spend ninety days with Sheriff Monroe for having transgressed on the promise she made three days before when she was released by the sheriff. Just three days out of jail, Annie forgot herself and in the carelessness of a wonderful jag brought on by canned heat she stretched out in the shade of the M street bridge, where she was picked up by Constable Buckingham. After sobering up in the local calaboose she was taken before Judge Barry, who sentenced her to ninety days with the sheriff.

Roy Sherman and family from Orange County in Southern California, was a visitor last Wednesday at the Van Deren and George homes. The family was on its way from the south to visit relatives in Plumas County and stayed only a few hours in Washington.

It is the intention of the proprietors to add pool and billiard tables to the establishment and make their place an inviting resort for the young men of the community. Bernacchi intends to move his family, which consists of seven children, to Washington.

LIVESTOCK IS MOVING AGAIN ON SOUTHERN PACIFIC LINES

Yesterday four carloads of cattle were moved into Sacramento on a Southern Pacific train, the first that has been seen in shipment since the quarantine was placed on account of the foot and mouth disease.

Yesterday 10,000 young lambs were reported in transit from Willows to eastern markets, but confirmation of this report could not be received by the Independent.

This is welcome news to farmers who have been looking for an outlet for their stock for slaughtering, and evidently is a forerunner to a complete relief of the quarantines that have been in existence for several weeks.

In another column column will be found word published from the central headquarters that the disease is practically under control or nearly entirely subdued.

The loss to farmers has been great, especially those whose stock has been slaughtered after having been found afflicted with the disease.

Fortunately the federal government gave all the aid possible in quelling the disease.

Foreign authorities credit Japan with practically 100 per cent literacy.

REAL BLOCKADE FOLLOWED BIG FIRE IN SACRAMENTO

For two hours last Wednesday evening, Constable Buckingham was forced to act as traffic officer on the Southern Pacific bridge in an effort to keep traffic moving following the great fire at the fruit sheds of the Southern Pacific Company along the waterfront.

Residents of Washington who watched the parade are willing to assert that not less than 10,000 automobiles passed between the two bridges and returned to Sacramento.

The principal jam occurred at the entrance to the Southern Pacific bridge at Third and Anne streets, where autos were lined up forty and fifty to a line waiting for a chance to pass.

For more than two hours the stream of autos passed continuously between one bridge and another, some coming west over the M street bridge and some over the Southern Pacific bridge.

Fortunately every driver knew that it was imperative on him to drive slowly and no damage was done, although some cars were held in line for more than two hours.

CLARKSBURG PARENTS WANT BETTER ROAD FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Woodland, May 6.—An appeal for road improvement on the Sacramento levee route from Freeport to Clarksburg was made to the board of supervisors here yesterday by a delegation of Clarksburg union school district, pleading in the interests of education. According to the report of the delegation, it is now impossible to travel the present road, denying the children the opportunity of attending school from the north of Clarksburg.

There has recently been added to the levee road several feet of sand from dredging operations made by the adjoining reclamation district to bring the levee up to road grade with the understanding that the road would then be improved or paved. There now exists a stretch of three miles which is practically impassable, thus making it impossible for the school bus of the district to make the trip. This forces the trip to be made by a back road which is also in poor shape and in the rainy season impossible to travel.

The need of the Clarksburg people is undenied by the board and it is only the financial problem that is confronting them. Supervisor W. E. M. Beardslee, who took his seat with the board yesterday for the first time since his appointment, will no doubt make this call the first business of his official position.

JAPANESE GIRL DROWNS IN WEST SACRAMENTO CANAL

A three-year-old Japanese girl, the daughter of Miyano Yuki, farmer of West Sacramento, was drowned Wednesday afternoon in an irrigation ditch, a short distance from where her parent was working in a field.

The father saw the child fall into the ditch and rushed to her rescue. She was dragged from the water a few minutes later and a physician summoned, but the child was dead when the doctor arrived. The little girl had been playing in the field and in an unguarded moment ventured to the edge of the ditch and fell into the water.

The body of the child was taken to Sacramento for burial following an investigation of the case by Coroner Ross Wilson.

Statistics issued the other day go to show that Native Sons in California are decreasing.

Surely nobody will have the hardihood to accuse the natives of birth control ideas.

The accusation has often been made that the Anti-Saloon League is running the government of these United States.

But you can't notice it, can you? Lots of booze.

HAY PRICES NOW RANGING AROUND $20 PER TON

In the Holland district last Monday 250 tons of baled alfalfa hay was sold for $20 per ton in the field.

This is a splendid price for first cutting alfalfa and will mean at least $24 or $25 per ton for other crops to come later on.

No hay was left over from the harvest of last year and owing to the shortage of the rainfall of this last spring large crops of hay are not expected by the growers.

Several farmers in West Sacramento have started irrigating their alfalfa fields and these should reap a splendid harvest during the coming fall.. Irrigated alfalfa grows wonderfully in the West Sacramento district, for even without irrigation six crops are usually produced.

At the present writing all irrigation ditches in the district are filled to the brim and many whose land borders on low canals have only to cut a ditch to permit their fields to be flooded.

Around Dixon and between there and Suisun hundreds of acres of grain along the Southern Pacific right of way appear as if the crop of grain was not worth cutting. As a matter of fact, sheep are being turned into many fields, indicating a hopelessness for a hay crop or even a grain crop in that locality.

The Holland district and the West Sacramento districts are faring splendidly, not only in the alfalfa crop but in the grain crop.

ELECTION POSTPONED MEETING OF BOOSTERS CLUB LAST TUESDAY

Owing to the fact that the town hall was occupied by the election board last Tuesday evening, the regular meeting of the Washington Boosters Club was postponed to next Tuesday night at 8 p. m.

Several members of the club gathered on the outside of the hall, but feeling that the election returns should not be disturbed, no meeting was called.

An increased membership is expected to be present at the next meeting, because the membership committee has been active in soliciting the presence at the club of many of the property owners of the town.

TAX DELINQUENCY IN YOLO COUNTY IS $14,831.00

Woodland, May 8.—Tax Collector Robert Woods yesterday made his settlement of the collections of the second installment of taxes with County Auditor R. P. Wallace. His collections during the month of April amounted to $319,391.51, which, with taxes previously collected, aggregates the sum of $905,185.67 collected for the tax period.

Woods is charged with $920,017.64, leaving a delinquency of $14,831.97, or 1.612 per cent. This is a trifle more than the average percentage of delinquency, it generally running about from 1 per cent to 1 1-3 per cent.

A considerable amount will yet be collected before Woods makes his final settlement which occurs on or about June 12, at which time such property as then remains delinquent is sold to the state and owners must resort to the more complicated and expensive process of redeeming such tax sales through the office of the county auditor.

In spite of repeated warnings, deaths are caused by the operation of automobile engines in closed garages. Carbon monoxide is given off by an automobile engine at all times and is extremely poisonous. When it is necessary to leave the engine running, all the doors and windows of the garage should be open or the car should be driven into the open.

ADDITIONAL GROUND IS TAKEN OVER FOR CAMPING PURPOSES

A block of vacant ground, bounded by Fourth and Fifth streets and by Harriett and Mary streets, now vacant, with the exception of four small houses, has been taken over by J. Pereira to be used by him as an addition to the West Sacramento auto camp.

Yesterday Pereira told the Independent that it was his intention to clean up and remodel the houses on the block and also to place the entire block in condition for camping.

This property has been owned by Mrs. J. Harbinson for several years, bringing but little revenue in rentals for the houses that were occupied by colored residents or Mexicans.

The property is now under option by Pereira, to be purchased outright before the option expires.

Pereira has also bought the house and lot at the corner of Fourth and Mary streets, also formerly owned by Mrs. Harbinson. This house he will have remodeled for his own residence and will direct both camping blocks frrom central headquarters to be located in this latter house.

AUTOISTS AND PEDESTRIANS WATCH EACH OTHER CAREFULLY

Axel Field, a pedestrian in West Sacramento, last Wednesday night at a point just north of headquarters was somewhat injured when he bumped into an automobile driven by Ted Jackson of Auburn.

It would seem that Field was somewhat scared of the automobile and in the glare of the headlights moved out into the center of the road. Jackson, believing him to be a holdup man, stepped on the gas and luckily for Field, he jumped on the radiator of the car just as he was about to be struck. Explanations were made and Constable Buckingham, who had been summoned to the point squared the matter up.

Jackson took Field to the emergency hospital in Sacramento and had his injuries attended to.

Last Monday night as Buckingham was returning from Woodland, a red light was flashed on him at a point at about half-way between the causeway and the Fifth street subway. He slowed down, but anticipating trouble he prepared for it, for he believed the party waving the red light intended to hold him up.

Evidently the parties recognized the constable and proceeded on their way to Sacramento, remarking as they passed Buckingham's car, "How far would you have gone if you hadn't stopped."

Buckingham followed the auto but the occupants made sure of eluding him by extinguishing their lights and running into some side road where they were missed.

RIVER GROWERS SET PRICE FOR SCHEDULE PACKING

Courtland, May 3.--Representatives of the various fruit shipping concerns in this district met here with growers to fix prices for fruit packing in the coming season.

Agreement was reached that no bonus will be paid for packing and that if a head packer is to be employed, he will be paid by the day or month.

The following schedule was adopted:

Pears—Making boxes, packing and lidding, 8 cents per package.

Plums—Making crates, packing and lidding, 10 cents per package.

The price for labeling was fixed at one-fourth cent for each label. Where extra cleats are used, one-half cent extra per package will be paid.

City to outline business attraction plan

From Melinda Posner
Redevelopment & Housing Agency
City of West Sacramento

At the next meeting of the West Sacramento Economic Development Advisory Commission (EDAC), members will be presented with the details of the Redevelopment Agency's plan to attract new business to West Sacramento.

The debut of the Business Recruitment Program is the result of EDAC's and the City Council's action last year to create and implement an aggressive plan for attracting new business. According to Val Toppenberg, Director of Redevelopment and Housing, the program is not so much new as newly staffed. "Business recruitment and attraction have always been a component of the City's economic development program. However, up to this point, no staff member had been exclusively devoted to business recruitment," he said.

EDAC's action came after extensive review and study over the types of businesses that made the most sense to recruit to the Sacramento region. The "Targeted Industry Study," completed in March 1996, identified computer technology, food manufacturing and bio-medical as the industries that were best suited for this area. That is where Michael Luken, the individual responsible for implementing the new program, will be focusing his efforts. "The City figured out what kinds of companies it wants to attract. Now the City can market to those businesses," said Mr. Luken. The program is designed to accomplish business recruitment through two components: 1) active marketing of West Sacramento to companies and site selection consultants and 2) responding to business inquiries.

More aggressive marketing of the community will be implemented by working closely with other economic development organizations who actively market the Sacramento region, such as SACTO (Sacramento Area Commerce and Trade Organization) and the State Trade and Commerce Agency. The Agency will also participate in more trade shows and trade missions, as well as advertising in both local and regional newspapers and special trade publications.

The Business Recruitment Program will also formalize efforts to respond to business inquiries. Business inquires come from one of three sources: SACTO; the State Commerce and Trade Agency; and direct Sacramentans without cars to compete for more of West Sacramento jobs.

More benches, shelters located in the afternoon shade of trees and buildings would encourage more marginal folks to take the bus and reduce the smog.

Am looking forward to the changes.

BUSINESS from p. 7

requests from interested businesses. In the past it was difficult to respond to all requests due to the volume of inquiries and lack of staff time. Agency staff will now be able to respond to every request with a customized package specifically designed for each business.

Business recruitment and attraction is a critical component of the City's overall economic development program. New companies who choose to locate in West Sacramento bring jobs for City residents and an increased tax base for the City. New jobs also boost local businesses as more individuals spend more money on the commodities of daily life. This "multiplier effect" brings substantial resources into a community. For example, employees spending from 75 manufacturing jobs translates into an estimated $2,652,400 spent locally on other goods and services, according to Plant Site Locators, an internet site selection service.

To hear more about the Business Recruitment Program, join the Economic Development Advisory Commission at their regular meeting on Wednesday, May 28 at 6 p.m. at the City Council Chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd, 2nd Floor, West Sacramento. The public is invited to attend.

drugs and other issues.

"That age group is particularly susceptible to that kind of trouble," said Kopperud. "They're coming out of small elementary schools to a big middle school where there are a lot more forces at play. If trouble is going to start, it will start at that level."

Kopperud added that the district "will focus its attempts" at preventing drug involvement and other student behavioral problems at the middle school level.
